

*TRAINING CO-ORDINATOR*

For decades our social sailors have been left behind. They are an underrepresented community, and we must fight for their liberation.

I will be the one to achieve this.

My three point scheme is aimed at increasing involvement for social sailors in every aspect of LUSC life.

Objective 1: Recruiting more sailors

We need a stronger presence at freshers' fairs. I will ensure that people would actively engage with our stand by any means possible.

A more enticing webpage on LUU, that presents clearly our events and activities, especially GIAG sessions and welcome socials.

Make GIAG sessions available for the many not the few: anyone is free to try out one of the social sailors trainings. Membership is needed from the second session they attend. This would make routes into the sailing society more accessible.

Objective 2: Organizing more sessions

Opportunities for social sailors to get involved in racing activities such as making one or two spots at racing trainings available for social sailors. This would make integration of young prodigies into the team run more smoothly.

Of course, it is not just our prodigies that are crucial. Through organizing more events where alumni are invited, I will make sure our veterans will not be forgotten.

Also I would suggest to establish an all-members Facebook group chat, for posting training notices, both social and racing.

Finally, I am keen to set the team off for Lake Garda, in Italy, for SSW next year if people agree. As an Italian, I have connections with Francesco Bruni, Ruggero Tita, Al Capone and many more, that would make the trip unforgettable.

Objective 3: Improved teaching

My teaching philosophy: I will be friendly and approachable yet, much like Hercules, I will train social sailors to be warriors.

My survival guide for fireflies: social sailors could be supplied with emergency pasta for times of hunger during sessions.

This three point scheme highlights my intention to allow for greater flexibility between social and racing teams: recruiting more sailors, organizing more sessions and improved teaching.

Make the social team great again

Vote for Pietro as training co-ordinator and the social team will return to shine.
